A COUNTRY FUNERAL.—If there could be any choice in the place of one's dying it would surely be in the country. In the city one drops out of the life-boat, the great sea of humanity closes over him, and that is the end. A few hearts appreciate the loss and find time to feel sad; but in others the excitement and hurry of every day life fill up the void death made, and sorrow is monopolized by necessity.

But in the country everything is so different. For miles around the good, steady-going people lay aside their work, don their Sunday-suits, and with sober faces and steady movement gather at the house of mourning. The one grief lays its finger on the hearts of all, and makes them kin. The lawyer bows to the blacksmith, and the lawyer's wife nods respectfully to the working girl. The woman gathered in the house, exchanging salutations in whispers, and detail all the incidents of the last days of the deceased. The minister is present, and when the time comes to go to the church where the funeral service is to be held the men cluster about the doors, take off their hats, and with bowed heads listen to the minister while he reads the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians and offers a prayer. Then, such as feel inclined, take a look at the dead face, the coffin is borne out to the black-robed hearse, the family succeeds that, and then the people in their various carriages form the long and tedious procession. The travellers and wayfarers who chance to meet it lift their hats until the cortege have passed, and then go their way, musing on the death of life and the life of death. Two or three friends have remained behind at the desolate house, to put it in order and relieve it as much as possible of the odor and reminders of death. At the church, the front seats in the body of the church have been reserved for the "mourners," whose entrance following that of the coffin forms the chief object and spectacle of interest to the assembled congregation. When all is quiet, the minister refers to the solemn occasion which has brought them together, the "dispensation of Providence," and then prays. The choir sings something dolorous to a melodeon's accompaniment, a sermon on death, life and immortality follows, closing with an address to the mourners, which is usually an address of torture and grievance. When God is speaking to a human heart, alas, that man should presume to speak and expect to be heard! The benediction is pronounced, and then the people in single file pass to take a last look of the dead. Many shed tears.—Now and then a woman lingers over the coffin to picture the face on her heart or observe the make of the burial robe. One presses her hand on the cold brow, while another smooths with her fingers the damp hair. Some of grief break forth from the mourners, which become a torrent of grief as leaving their pews they take the last look of the household face. The business like sexton screws down the coffin-lid, the coffin is borne to the village grave-yard, where, amid a fresh burst of sobs and tears, the horse thud of the falling sods strikes the sore hearts like spears. Some of the sympathizers take a turn among the grass-grown graves, and soon all have turned away to their homes recounting on their way the virtues of the dead. The occasion forms the theme of talk for weeks to come, and in the quiet neighborhood there is something missed, and in a neighborhood where one hears tell of a fall, "How we miss him." The birds sing, the flowers bloom, the fruits ripen, and each and all are reminders of the lost one. "She sang sweeter than the birds," sighs the mother. "How she loved flowers; even the daisies crowned her like a queen," the lover says to his soul. And so in heart and in a thousand ways the sacred memory kept alive, the snows preserve it, the rains revive it, the breezes permeate it with the manifold fragrances of nature, and all blossoming and ripening, things crown it with completeness.—N. Y. World.

ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.—The Columbus (O.) Dispatch says: That portion of the world's society living in this county, and in the immediate vicinity of Dublin, has been shaken to its foundation, and the vibration has not yet ceased. The cause of this remarkable condition of things is the elopement of Miss Mary Everett, a member of one of the oldest and most respectable connected families in the county with Frank Thompson, one of the most ill-shapen negroes in the county.

The blow is a very painful one to the family and relatives, and every thing possible is being done to save the infuriated girl from a life of misery and degradation. Detectives are on their track, and they will be hunted to the death. Frank Thompson, who has induced the young lady to share his fortunes, is a blinky-eyed, round-shouldered negro, with a purely African countenance. He has been working on the Everett farm for about three years, and has conducted himself, generally speaking, in a manner in consonance with the position of a hired man. No one ever entertained a thought, or even a shadow of suspicion, that there existed between the negro and the girl any state of feeling calculated to lead to the present unfortunate state of affairs.

The Everett family is connected by marriage with some of our prominent citizens, and the mortification is keenly felt. Miss Mary Everett is a young lady of about 19 years of age, and, although not pronounced handsome, was endowed with certain qualities peculiar to her sex that endeared her in the hearts of all who knew her. How she ever became infatuated with, or was brought about to leave home, friends and society, for the Thompson, is one of those inexplicable circumstances that has bothered the wisest heads since the world began. The father of the girl died last year, and the property has just been divided, Miss Mary's share amounting to fifty or sixty acres of good land, which, if in the market, would bring a very good price.

The runaway last Friday made application to Judge Pugh, of the Probate Court, for a license to marry, but it was refused. Since that time their whereabouts is unknown. The unfortunate girl was the only unmarried daughter, and the step she has taken has cast upon her people a disgrace of the most painful character.

SIMMONS'
LIVER
LIVER DISEASE and indigestion prevail to a greater extent than probably any other malady, and relief is always to be found only after it is cured. If the liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. It causes headache, constipation, jaundice, pain in the shoulders, back, and other symptoms which are the result of a diseased liver. It is the best remedy for all these ailments, and is a simple vegetable compound, and can be taken in any form. It is a great remedy for all parts of the country will vouch for its efficacy.

REGULATOR.
The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and it is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constipated, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes nausea of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved.

MEDICAL.

BALTO. LOCK HOSPITAL.

DR. JOHNSTON.
Physician of this celebrated institution, has dis- covered the most Certain, Speedy, Pleasant and Effective Remedy in the world for all

DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.
Weakness of the Back or Limbs, Strictures, Affection of the Kidneys or Bladder, Involun- tary Discharges, Impotency, General Debility, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Langour, Low Spirits, Confusion of Ideas, Palpitation of the Heart, Timidity, Trembling, Dimness of Sight, or Gid- diness, Disease of the Head, Throat, Nose or Skin, Affections of the Liver, Lungs, Stomach or Bowels, and all the Disorders arising from Solitary Habits of Youth—secret and soli- tary practices more fatal to their victims than the songs of the Sirens to the Mariners of Ulyas- ses, blighting their most brilliant hopes or an- ticipations, &c.

YOUNG MEN.
Especially, who have become the victims of Solitary Vice, and dreadful and destructive habits which annually sweep to an untimely grave thousands of young men of the most ex- cellent talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entered listening Senates with the thunders of eloquence, or walked to extacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.
Married persons, or Young Men contemplating marriage, aware of Physical Weakness, Loss of Procreative Power—Impotency, Nervous Excitability, Palpitation, Organic Weak- ness, Nervous Debility, or any other Disqualifi- cation, speedily relieved.
He who places himself under the care of Dr. J. may religiously confide in his honor as a gentle- man, and confidently rely upon his skill as a physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS.
Immediately cured and Full Vigor Restored.
This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulg- ences. Young persons are too apt to estimate the consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those fall- ing into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive con- sequences of both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the Physical and Mental Functions weakened. Loss of Procreative Power, Nervous, Irritability, Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, Constitutional Debility, and Wasting of the Frame, Cough, Consump- tion, Decay and Death.

A CURE WARRANTED IN TWO DAY
Relief in Six Hours! No Mercury!
Persons ruined by Ignorant, Trifling Pretenders and their Deadly Poison, should apply imme- diately.

DR. JOHNSTON.
Member of the Royal College of Surgery of London, Graduate of one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the great- est part of whose life has been spent in the hospi- tals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and else- where, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever
